Measure Protecting CIA Files Blocked in House

Washington Post Staff Writer

CIA files beyond reach of the Freebill that would put a vast number of dom of Information Act. The House was blocked tempo-that the measure was worded so restrictions imposed on filing lawfrom ever coming to light, He said judicial review of the CIA's admin-stration of the new law would be Ted Weiss (D-N.Y.), who charged virtually impossible because of the that it could keep illegal activities The objections came from Rep tee on Intelligence Chairman Ed-award P. Boland (D-Mass.) said the the American Civil Liberties Union as well as the CIA. House Commitported by the national leadership of ever, emphasized that it is sup-Backers of the legislation, how-quorum was not present. for a vote on the House floor today tion yesterday on the ground that a thirds approval. Weiss blocked acunder a procedure requiring two-office of security. search the "operational files" in the slightly different form, the proposal would enable the CIA to refuse to and science and technology and the agency's directorates of operations Already passed by the Senate in and policy studies, and reduce the two- to three-year backlog.

CIA had pledged to speed "the flow of properly releasable information" if the bill is enacted.

Critics of the bill, however, con-CIA to spend more time processing such as finished intelligence reports the Freedom of Information Act requests for other records under Boland said this would enable the

The bill is expected to come up should not be made public. CIA officials, however, have obgence information." Under the current law, which was extended to cover the CIA 10 close any information it contended years ago, the agency has thus far never been forced by courts to dis-confidential agents abroad that their secrets are safe at Langley. jected for years that the FOIA takes times makes it difficult to convince too much time and effort and somequesters to go to court to contest the "improper exemption of operant would have to have "personal ational files" by the CIA, but under limited circumstances. A complain-The bill would allow FOIA re-to the CIA's recalcitrance in dealing tend that the backlog is largely due "properly classified foreign intelliaffords adequate protection for with requests and that the law now records are "operational files." Such provisions, Weiss charged knowledge or otherwise admissible evidence" that the withholding was but it simply by stating that the files allegation is made, the CIA can reimproper. And even when such an "likely to contain" the requested

FOIA law has been questionable at an agency whose record of meeting its responsibilities under present "constitute an unwarranted gift to not adequate. FOIA, but Weiss protested that the proper activities still would be subformation concerning illegal or imofficials assured Congress that insafeguards contained in the bill are ect to search and review under At hearings on the measure, CIA endless haggling over what "the specific subject matter of an invesother bodies. Critics contend the conducted by the House or Senate matter of an investigation" being concerning "the specific subject search and review for information Under the measure, "operational files" would be subject to FOIA tigation" is supposed to mean. list is too narrow and could lead to intelligence committees or several